2404 W 62nd Street, Indianapolis, IN 46268 317-253-3033 admin@tchindy.org

Dear Community Partners,

The Children's House is proud to support the Crooked Creek Cultural Center and the opportunity it creates for children and families to learn, create, and connect together. Families need welcoming places where children's curiosity is encouraged, parents feel supported, and community relationships can grow. This project directly responds to that need.

Young children learn best through exploration, creativity, and shared experiences with caring adults. The Crooked Creek Cultural Center will provide a space where families can engage in the arts. This will strengthen parent-child relationships while fostering imagination, confidence, and a sense of belonging.

Equally important, the Center is designed to work in partnership with existing schools, early childhood programs, and community organizations. This collaborative approach expands opportunities for families without adding barriers or duplicating services, ensuring that resources remain accessible, inclusive, and responsive to community needs.

As an organization dedicated to supporting children from preK to 8th grade, The Children's House strongly advocates for investments that uplift families and create enriching environments where children can thrive. We believe the Crooked Creek Cultural Center will become a trusted gathering place for families and a lasting source of inspiration and connection.

The Children's House enthusiastically supports this initiative and looks forward to the positive impact it will have on children, parents, and the community for years to come.

Sincerely,

Abigail Louden School Directress

The Children's House